

Character Descriptions

Tommy Felger - “The Fro Bro”

Tommy Felger - Lead, 22. A camp-counselor like optimist, the only thing Tommy Felger wanted more than getting the Froco job was winning the approval of his freshmen companions. A self-proclaimed “FroBro”, Tommy wants to be the ultimate friend to his group of fledgling college students. Unfortunately, this gets him roped into shenanigans that constantly put his job at risk. Despite consistently being the victim of his freshmen’s manipulations, he always manages to bounce back with the pep of a golden retriever.

Janet Erickson - The Steminist

Janet Erickson - Lead, 18, PreMed, Intense, Uptight, Driven. A downright obsessive woman in STEM, Janet Erickson has neither patience nor respect for the worries of “mediocre students” like parties or romance. Her plans of success are interrupted when she accidentally gets a crush on the human embodiment of everything she hates — Jet Johnson.

Jarrett ‘Jet’ Johnson - “Athlete with a Victim Complex”

Jarrett ‘Jet’ Johnson - Lead, 18, D1 Athlete with some serious charm. A well-meaning moron. Jet often digs himself in a hole by problematic or downright obscene logic, but he’s just so earnest that you can’t stay mad at him for long. Jet’s arc centers around an honest goal with horrible execution. Quickly realizing that the social hierarchy at an Ivy isn’t as clear-cut as it was in his Southern hometown, Jet makes it his mission to stand for something deeper and become more than the “jock” he’s seen to be.

Oliver ‘Ollie’ Bernstein - “NJB”

Oliver ‘Ollie’ Bernstein - Lead, 18. Ollie possesses all the qualities of the classic Nice Guy. A decent looking guy made more attractive by a good-natured personality? Check. Endearing awkwardness? Check. Struggling to maintain a wilting long-distance relationship because he’s afraid of change and heartbreak? Ohhh baby — check. Ollie’s feels torn between his dedication to his girlfriend and the embracing of his new life in college, especially when it comes to his budding feelings for Casey.

Casey McDowell - “Quirky Girl”

Casey McDowell - Lead, 18. Bubbly yet mischievous, Casey somehow manages to be the confidant of everyone in the Froco group. A prankster with a good heart, Casey invests herself perhaps a little too much in the lives of her hall-mates. Along with Ollie, she plays matchmaker and saves the group from even the stickiest of situations with an infectious sense of fun. However, her shenanigans with Ollie evolve into quite the pickle when she realizes that she’s hopelessly in love with him.

Tori Hubert - “How Did You Get In?”

Tori Hubert - Supporting, 18. Tori Hubert is an enigma. At first glance, Tori would be much happier and much more at home at a state school. She’s hot. She parties. She never goes to class. It seems college academia is the farthest thing from Tori’s concerns. But still, Tori was valedictorian. She won science fair. She graduated Summa Cum Laude. At her core, Tori is a living contradiction that is far smarter than she presents herself to be.

Charles Greenburrow “Quadruple- Legacy Celebrity Baby”

Charles Greenburrow - Supporting, 18. With four generations of Greenburrow men having previously attended the college, Charles Greenburrow knows (and makes sure others know) that he has the lay of the land. Charles is convinced that his legacy status and celebrity status (he’s the once-removed nephew of Madonna) get him “unwanted” special treatment at the small college.

Millie Orwell - “Booksmart. Not Life Smart”

Millie Orwell - Supporting, 18. Growing up in a small town in central Oklahoma, Millie Orwell thought “spooning” involved actual spoons until her senior year of high-school. She’s a sweet, sheltered hard worker. Even somewhere as tame as their academically prestigious school, Millie often finds herself unprepared for the conversations and encounters she experiences at college.

Cody Hurtz - “Off-Brand Mark Zuckerberg”

Cody Hurtz - Supporting, 18. Computer Science major. An academic genius. Still, Cody Hurtz just can’t seem to catch a break. Determined to lose his virginity his freshman year at college, Cody often finds himself scheming for ways to impress the women around him. With an IQ of 142, it seems the only thing Cody just can’t seem to grasp is women.

Peter Erwin - “Classic Yale Snake”

Peter Erwin - Cameo, 18. A shameless snake for opportunities to get ahead, Peter Erwin is only nice to one group at Yale: professors. He’s involved in everything, but he is most vocal about his love for acapella and improv.

Issac Beller - “The Softboi”

Issac Beller - Cameo, 18. Issac Beller is the classic tortured writer type. He reads David Foster Wallace. He writes poetry and hangs art up in his room. He’s a smidge academically pretentious but finds himself thriving at Yale in writing seminars and seducing women.
